

City Council faces budget adoption

By BECKY ESTRADA
News editor

Recommended adoption of the city's proposed budget for 1977-78 will be among several items of major significance at the meeting of the Lompoc City Council Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school administration board room, 1301 North A Street.

The funding amount of the $11,123,465 preliminary budget has changed by approximately $100,000 since the last council meeting, largely due to health insurance increases for employees. There may be discussion of what the city will do concerning budgeting of operation of the city jail depending upon the result of reconsideration of funding by the county board of supervisors at their meeting tonight. The council has decided the jail will be closed June 30 if the county doesn't agree to take on 60 per cent of the $100,000 annual operation expenses. The supervisors turned down such a proposal June 10, surprising city officials who had negotiated a proposed contract with the aid of Supervisor Robert Hedlund and county administrative offices.

Also on the agenda Tuesday will be a recommendation for a refuse collection fee increase of $1.47 from the current $3.31 monthly rate for twice weekly pickup in residential areas. Assistant City Administrator Bob Livingston said the increase is being proposed because of rising equipment and supply expenses as well as employee costs.

Jack Lam, community development director for the city, will also make a report concerning the recommendation that the city council renew its contract with the Community Action Commission to operate the city bus system for another year. The recommendation, to be made by City Administrator Gene Wahlers, provides for the system to be operated on the existing demand-responsive basis in which buses answer individual calls for service. The service was provided on a trial basis for 10 months.

First male U.S. saint declared

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Bishop John Neumann died on the streets of Philadelphia 117 years ago, exhausted by his charitable work. Sunday, Pope Paul VI declared "the little bishop" as America's first male saint.

The Pope canonized Neumann in a festive, open-air ceremony in St. Peter's Square attended by almost 30,000 American Catholics who flew to Italy for the occasion.

The American pilgrims burst into cheers and applause as the Pope raised Neumann to sainthood by repeating the centuries-old Latin formula:

"We declare and define that Blessed John Nepomucene Neumann is a saint and we inscribe his name in the calendar of saints and establish that he should be devoutly honored among the saints of the universal church."

Among the American observers was Michael Flanagan, whose cure from bone cancer after his parents prayed at the Neumann shrine was declared a miracle, making the bishop eligible for sainthood.

'Black Gold' begins flow from Alaska's North Slope

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (UPI) — The "black gold" of Alaska's North Slope begins its long-awaited trip to the American consumer today.

With monitors watching every inch of the 800-mile pipeline that took nine years and $9.9 billion to construct, oil was to begin flowing toward the ice-free port of Valdez today at the initial rate of 300,000 barrels a day.

It will take 30-40 days for the oil, oozing southward at 1.1 miles per hour, to reach Valdez on Alaska's south coast, from where it will be shipped by tankers to West Coast refineries.

Within the year, officials of the controversial project expect 1.2 million barrels a day to be flowing through the pipeline, supplying about 15 per cent of America's domestic crude oil requirements.

At exactly 9 a.m. (2 p.m. EDT), an eight-foot long metal "pig," similar in shape to a huge bar bell, will be pushed into the main pipeline inside pump station No. 1 on the Arctic shore of the North Slope.

The "pig" will follow nitrogen already

Unrest movements told as Idi Amin vanishes

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A troop buildup and mechanized armor movements were reported in Uganda today following a weekend shootout at Entebbe and reports that President Idi Amin had vanished after a fresh assassination attempt.

Telephone interviews reported the military and police movements after the Nairobi newspaper The Nation said two gunmen tried to assassinate Amin and the burly dictator has since disappeared.

"If you find him, please contact Uganda immediately," the newspaper quoted Ugandan Vice President Mustafa Adrisi as saying.

The newspaper's report could not be confirmed. Nor could other reports saying their had been a coup attempt and that Amin may have been captured by rebels.

Roadblocks were thrown up around the Ugandan capital of Kampala and neighboring Entebbe, site of the country's international airport, and scene of last year's dramatic Israeli rescue of hostages from a hijacked Air France plane.

Security was also reported strengthened at the Uganda-Kenya border with heavier strength guard patrols.

Reports from Uganda said some persons did not report for work today and some members of the Baganda tribe and army personnel were reported arrested following the confusing events of the weekend.

Nicholsons get probation, fine for fox

Municipal Judge S. Jon Gudmund fined Frank and Margaret Nicholson $500 each Friday and placed the couple on two years summary probation, for keeping a fox in their Vandenberg Village home in violation of state law.

Gudmund sentenced the couple after a lengthy appeal for leniency by attorney Leonard A. Newton. Newton said he failed to see how the Nicholsons had harmed society by their actions.

Both Frank, 63, and Margaret, 54, of 4050 St. Andrews Court, declared their innocence.

A jury found the couple guilty earlier in the week in a one-day trial before Gudmund, a visiting judge from Santa Maria.

The probation period will run concurrently with probation time still left from an earlier conviction for keeping too many dogs in their home without a kennel license.

Still unresolved is the balance of a 30-day jail term assessed the couple by Judge Robert Eckhoff for violating probation which had been imposed in the dog case. Basis for the violation was the fox incident.

The Nicholsons had served two days of the county jail term when they were released on a writ of habeas corpus.

Following the sentencing Friday by Gudmund, Newton served the court with a notice of appeal from the conviction. The Nicholsons have five days in which to file an appellate statement of appeal.

Economy growth in full winter recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy expanded at an annual rate of 6.9 per cent during the first quarter, the fastest growth in a year, the Commerce Department reported today.

The revision in the real Gross National Product — which measures the country's output of goods and services after adjustment for inflation — was another signal of a full economic recovery from the severe winter weather.

The department had estimated two months ago that the GNP grew at an estimated annual rate of 5.2 per cent during the first three months of this year. Last month, Commerce analysts sharply revised the estimate upward to 6.4 per cent after gathering more complete data.

The final revision, which incorporated statistics on investment income from abroad, showed the growth rate was actually 6.9 per cent.

It was the largest quarterly gain since the 9.2 per cent increase during the first quarter of 1976. Increases during the last three quarters of 1976 were 4.5 per cent, 3.9 per cent and 2.6 per cent, respectively.

For the remainder of the year, administration economists have said they expect moderate but steady growth rates.

Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said he expected the second quarter GNP to increase at a 6.5 per cent annual rate. The growth rates for the third and fourth quarters should be "somewhat" slower than the second but "still good."

Commerce said that the GNP is now estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,799 trillion, $54.2 billion above the fourth quarter of last year.

The GNP price deflator showed that inflation was measured at a 5.7 per cent annual rate during the first quarter, 0.2 per cent above the estimate issued last month.

Bill fights loom in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress was beginning another busy week today with fights looming over defense and foreign aid appropriations bills, whether to enact a federal subsidy for sugar farmers, and mine safety legislation.

The first order of business in the House was a $14.4 billion measure for the agriculture Department, which among other things would implement plans for a $240 million sugar subsidy.

The House also plans debate and votes on foreign assistance and defense appropriations bills later in the week.

The Senate was starting the week with a bill appropriating funds for the Treasury Department, and later scheduled a federal mine safety bill transferring federal enforcement activities from the Interior Department to the Labor Department.

That bill also would bring hard rock mines under the coal mine health and safety law.

On energy, the House Ways and Means Committee expects to decide on President Carter's proposed rebates of industrial fuel taxes, then turn to incentives for developing geothermal energy sources and increased drilling for oil and gas.

The issues are the last in the committee's first round of consideration on the tax parts of Carter's energy program. The second round will take another week or more.

The House Commerce subcommittee on energy is considering requirements for industrial conversion to coal and is expected to complete non-tax portions of Carter's program this week.

Bus line funding approved for year

Funding for Lompoc Municipal Bus Lines is assured for another year as a result of action by the County-Cities Area Planning Council, it was reported today by Mike Kaufman, assistant community development director.

The review by the council is an annual requirement, according to Kaufman.

In other action affecting Lompoc, the council adopted a regional transportation plan. Kaufman said the plan contains governmental machinery that will make it easy to implement various, future road improvements, including the extension of Central Avenue to connect with Highway 246.

Funding for the bus line comes from SB 325 monies, Kaufman said.

Supreme Court rules on abortion funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 today that poor women have no legal or constitutional right to state-funded elective abortions.

The opinion said states may give benefits to poor women who carry their pregnancies to full term while denying them to those who want abortions.

Speaking for the majority in cases from Pennsylvania and Connecticut, Justice Lewis Powell said the states may choose a policy of encouraging childbirth. And he said they have a wide latitude in deciding among competing demands for limited public funds.

Powell said this policy does not impinge on the constitutional right established in 1973 when the Supreme Court struck down state laws forbidding abortions.

In a flurry of orders and opinions as it pressed toward adjournment by the end of this month, the court also:

— Agreed to decide whether Tennessee may properly bar all members of the clergy from its 1977 constitutional convention.

— Ruled unanimously that Texas is under the 1965 Voting Rights act and can obtain relief only through the usual legal procedure of getting the consent of the U.S. attorney general or a U.S. district court in the District of Columbia.

— Ruled 6 to 3 that South Carolina may implement a 1973 state Senate reapportionment plan because the attorney general failed to object to it within 60 days as required.

In the Tennessee case, the State Supreme Court upheld the ban on clergymen despite claims that it violated the freedom of religion guarantee in the Constitution.

Tennessee Secretary of State Gentry Crowell said the Rev. Paul McDaniel, pastor of the Second Missionary Baptist Church in Chattanooga, will serve as a delegate "unless somebody puts a paper on my desk saying he won't."

McDaniel's election had been challenged in a suit by Selma Cash Pate, the runnerup in a 1976 election for delegates from the 29th House District of Hamilton County.

In the abortion case, dissenters were Justice Harry Blackmun, who wrote the 1973 opinion striking down most state abortion laws, and Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall.

They said the disparity in state funding "clearly operates to coerce indigent pregnant women to bear children they would not otherwise choose to have, and just as clearly this coercion can only operate upon the poor, who are uniquely the victims of this form of financial pressure."

Indigent women who were denied abortions brought the lawsuits on the ground that state practice ran counter to both the Social Security Act and the Constitution.

In another case, the Justices ruled that a St. Louis City hospital staffed by Roman Catholics also can refuse abortions. The court said the policy of Mayor John Poelker to withhold abortions, except when there is a grave threat to the health of the mother, can be tested at the polls.

Powell said an indigent women suffers no disadvantage because of a state's decision to fund childbirth.

Shuttle funding bill approved

A $2.9 billion bill which includes financing of the Space Shuttle project has been passed in Congress.

The NASA legislation includes $85 million to begin work on Orbiters 1 through 5 in the Shuttle program. About $250 million is to be appropriated later for improvements at Vandenberg Air Force Base in preparation for the Shuttle launching in 1982. Improvements will include lengthening the runway and preparing the launch site, projects which are to be started in April of 1979. The first Shuttle launching is to take place in December 1982.

Burglars hit home, apartment

Burglars hit a home and a department store and escaped with sound reproduction equipment, jewelry and other property with a combined value of more than $5,000, authorities said.

Burglars broke into the home of Everett Bonner at 218-C North M St., and stole a wide variety of stereo equipment valued at $4,180. The incident occurred Thursday night or Friday morning and was reported Saturday.

Burglars broke into Rasco Department Store at 1120 W. Ocean Avenue, and stole four radios, 24 watches, a portable, two-way radio instrument, and a variety of sound reproduction equipment. Value of the loss was estimated at $1,148.

There were no suspects in either case today.

Technicalities hold up OB clinic establishment

By SUE EDELMAN
Staff writer

Contract legalities and malpractice insurance coverage are among several problems still hindering the establishment of a county clinic in Lompoc for pregnant Medical patients, County Supervisor Robert Hedlund said today.

Hedlund said he would meet today with County Health Director Dr. Lawrence Hart to discuss various difficulties in contracting Lompoc doctors to treat the Medical patients.

Under a proposed arrangement, the county would pay local doctors about $150 per patient, to supplement what the doctors consider insufficient payment from Medical.

Currently, pregnant Medical patients from Lompoc must travel for pre-natal care and delivery to Santa Maria and Santa Barbara, where the county does pay obstetricians to accept the women.

County Health Director Dr. Lawrence Hart, Lompoc District Hospital Administrator William Diebner, four Lompoc doctors and Hedlund's assistant Doree Webb met June 8 to discuss a contract between the county and local doctors.

At the meeting, according to one obstetrician, Dr. Lewis Campbell, the county expressed willingness to contract Lompoc doctors as it does those in Santa Maria. However, Campbell added, the county could not guarantee the legality, security, or extension of such a contract.

Campbell said that Hart indicated that the state attorney general had raised some objections to the county Medical subsidy program. Hedlund said he did not yet know the nature of the objections, but would discuss them today with Hart. Hart could not be reached today.

Campbell, who stopped accepting OB Medical patients about a year ago when malpractice insurance rates helped to boost obstetrical costs, said he probably would not provide his services without assurances that the county contract would be valid. At the meeting, he said, "The two obstetricians present were afraid of it."

It was decided at the meeting that any public statements about their discussions would be released from Supervisor Hedlund's office.

Hedlund's assistant Webb said that new problems come to the county's attention since the meeting have caused her office to refrain from publishing any statement.

"We know for sure," Webb added though, "the county is going to set up a pre-natal Medical clinic in Lompoc." She said the county might establish the clinic in the health department of the Veterans Memorial Building, rather than at the Lompoc hospital.

Dr. Campbell commented, however, there may be not enough or no local doctors to staff the clinic: "You can set up 15 clinics in town, but when a woman goes into labor at 3 a.m. and there are no doctors, there is nothing you can do about it."

If no local doctors agreed to contract with the county to serve the Medical women, county nurses could still give routine checkups at the clinic. Women with apparent pre-natal complications and those going into labor would still have to travel out of town for a doctor's care. Also among possibilities for providing local obstetrical care, a traveling OB doctor, planned to be hired by the county with funds from a state grant, could periodically staff the Lompoc clinic.

Ordinance revision approved

Barely passing by a 6-4 margin, an ordinance revision was adopted by the County Planning Commission last week designed to thwart major residential developments on commercially zoned areas in the county.

While still permitting residential uses in commercial zones if the residence "is secondary to a primary commercial use," the ordinance is expected to ward off future projects such as the recently-approved Ashley Apartment complex in Solvang's shopping district.

Commissioner Stanley Radom of the Santa Ynez Valley said the ordinance was necessary to plug the loophole which allowed the 19-unit complex to be built in the multi-zoned commercial area.

Commissioners Donald E. Lahr of Santa Maria and Mrs. Donald B. Hamister of Goleta, however, expressed reservations about the ordinance, wondering if it was wise to so narrowly define permitted zoning and remove flexibility from the existing ordinance.

Commissioner Mrs. Peter Bratt of Goleta reemphasized that the ordinance would make it clear that residential use would have to remain second in the county unincorporated area's commercial districts.

Commissioners, before adopting the ordinance 6-4 noted that apartments for owners or employees of a store would probably still be permitted as long as the structure's primary function remained commercial.

Sierra Club schedule told

An evening hike, a Saturday beach walk, and an evening bike ride were announced today by the Sierra Club Arguello Group. All activities are open to both club members and the general public.

Scheduled for Wednesday evening June 22 is an easy hike that will explore regions of the Santa Ynez River bed near the new River Park. Participants are asked to meet at the Lompoc Bowl (corner of South Seventh and East Ocean) parking lot at 6:30 p.m. and bring drinking water.

The Saturday Beach walk will allow participants to explore an exceptionally beautiful portion of the California coast near Oso Flaco Lake. All hikers should meet at Oso Flaco Lake at 9 a.m. on June 25. Lunch and drinking water are necessary. Vistas of sand dunes, wildflowers, and the ocean will reward the participant.

An easy bike ride through the Lompoc Valley will leave from the Ryon Park parking lot at 6:30 p.m. on June 29. Participants should bring drinking water. More information on these activities is available from John Hartman at 733-4271.

POLICE, left, and spectator, far right, circle car that flipped over on South H Street, injuring the driver only slightly, according to authorities. Rocky Miclat, 17, of 1821 E. Lemon Ave., was treated at Lompoc Hospital and released. Miclat told police Friday he was driving south on H Street, when he became distracted by a spider he noticed on his pant leg. In an effort to dislodge the spider, he lost control of the car, causing it to flip over in the center divider, Miclat told investigators.

Buellton subdivision on county planners' agenda

A 23-house Buellton subdivision and continued consideration of current and pending development in the Orcutt area are scheduled to come up Wednesday before the County Planning Commission.

Commissioners are scheduled to consider a tentative parcel map proposed by Midtown Development Company for dividing a 10-acre Buellton parcel into 23 residential lots. Located at the northern end of Calor Drive, the project calls for parcels with a minimum of 8,000 square feet.

Planning Director Britt Johnson is scheduled to report to the commission on water and sewer services available for pending housing projects in the Orcutt area.

Johnson's report comes on the heels of a commission decision June 8 during a joint session with the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO), to conduct a full blown public hearing on a projected 1,200 dwellings anticipated in the area.

While Johnson's report is expected to deal with pending Orcutt projects, the long-range question of development in the area has already sparked some heated commission discussions and will probably evoke more disagreements between growth and limited growth advocates on the commission.

Meanwhile, Environmental Quality Coordinator Albert F. Reynolds has announced that the Office of Environmental Quality is at work on a joint environmental impact report on a number of Orcutt development proposals. The document will probably not be ready until October, however.

Commissioner Donald E. Lahr of Santa Maria urged that the upcoming public hearing be conducted in the North County, but expressed concern about the commission's preoccupation with Orcutt, while other growth areas such as the Santa Ynez Valley and Carpinteria Valley are not singled out.

Other items scheduled for Wednesday's weekly commission meeting which gets underway at 10 a.m. in the Planning Commission Hearing Room in the County Administration Building, include:

— Continued consideration of Phase II work on the Local

Coastal Program, a state-mandated review of primarily the coastlands in the Carpinteria Valley, focusing on agriculture, access, recreation, energy development, housing, special habitats and urban development.

— Consideration of a request for validation of a certificate of compliance for a 1.61 acre parcel on land zoned 10 acre AG on the east side of Telephone Road approximately 4,500 feet south of Clark Avenue in the Fifth District. The owners of the property are described as Collatz, Gunther and Ceglia.

— Consideration of a boundary line adjustment on three parcels located approximately two miles north on Long Canyon Road from Roblar Avenue in the Fourth District. Louis Netzer is the applicant.

— A public hearing on the request of property owner Harold E. Clayton for validation of a 16 x 26 addition to the rear of his dwelling at 286 Pegasus Avenue in Vandenberg Village.

The adjustment would allow of a minimum of 10 feet setback from the rear property line instead of the required 25 feet.

Federal cattlemen programs to be extended through Sept. 1

The Emergency Feed and Cattle Transportation Assistance Programs in Santa Barbara County have been extended through September 1, 1977.

The programs, under which eligible livestock producers in Santa Barbara County may receive financial assistance in purchasing feed grains and roughage up to 10 pounds per cow or other animal equivalent per day on the basis of two cents per pound feed grain equivalent, not to exceed 50 percent of the actual cost, and receive financial assistance in transporting animals to available pasture, have been extended through September 1, 1977. The programs in Santa Barbara County have been in effect since April 20, 1977.

Eligible livestock producers who will not have sufficient feed for their animals during the extended period should visit the local ASCS county office, located at 142 E. Carrillo Street, Santa Barbara, CA and apply for assistance for the extended period. The producers must furnish the following information to the office at the time of their visit:

1. Number and kind of livestock on hand.

2. Number of acres of feed grains or other roughage (alfalfa, failed grain crop for hay or grazing, etc.) for harvest on the farm and expected dates for beginning harvest.

3. Number of acres of pasture (dry and irrigated) that is now or will become available for his livestock, and expected date it will become available.

TWO PERSONS were injured Thursday in a one-car rollover on Highway 101 and Nojiqui Grade, the California Highway Patrol said. Antonio A. Gomez, 25, suffered a fractured back and a fractured shoulder, and a passenger in his car, Manuel C. Herrera, 21, suffered minor injuries, according to the CHP. Both men are from Santa Ana. The CHP said the car went into the center divider, crossed back across the highway and rolled over several times coming to rest off the highway.

THE CIRCULATION committee of the General Plan, headed by John Bullock, will meet Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. in the Lompoc County Administration Building, Cypress Avenue and E Street. Harold Callahan, assistant director of the Santa Barbara County Transportation Department, will brief the committee on county plans.

ALLAN Hancock College trustees will meet on June 28 on campus instead of the scheduled time of tomorrow night. The meeting was postponed because some of the trustees could not be present.

ANTONIO Cenda Melgoza, 29, of 505-F North D St., faced court action today on suspicion of third offense drunken driving. Melgoza was taken into custody early Saturday morning on Highway 1 near Lompoc Airport, and booked in Lompoc Jail under $1,440 bail. Melgoza was also charged with driving with a suspended driver's license.

TWO PERSONS were injured Friday night in a two-car, head-on collision that involved a third car, the California Highway Patrol said. Michael Murphy, 19, of San Luis Obispo, suffered a concussion and bruises, when his car crossed over the center line of Highway 154 near Carmichael observation point, and collided with a pickup truck driven by Peter Nutting, 67, of Seal Beach. Nutting was treated at Santa Ynez Valley Hospital and released. Murphy was treated at the same hospital and then transferred to a San Luis Obispo hospital for further treatment. The CHP said the collision also resulted in damage to the car of George Widmark, 34, of Yorba Linda in Southern California. Widmark was not injured.

Obituary

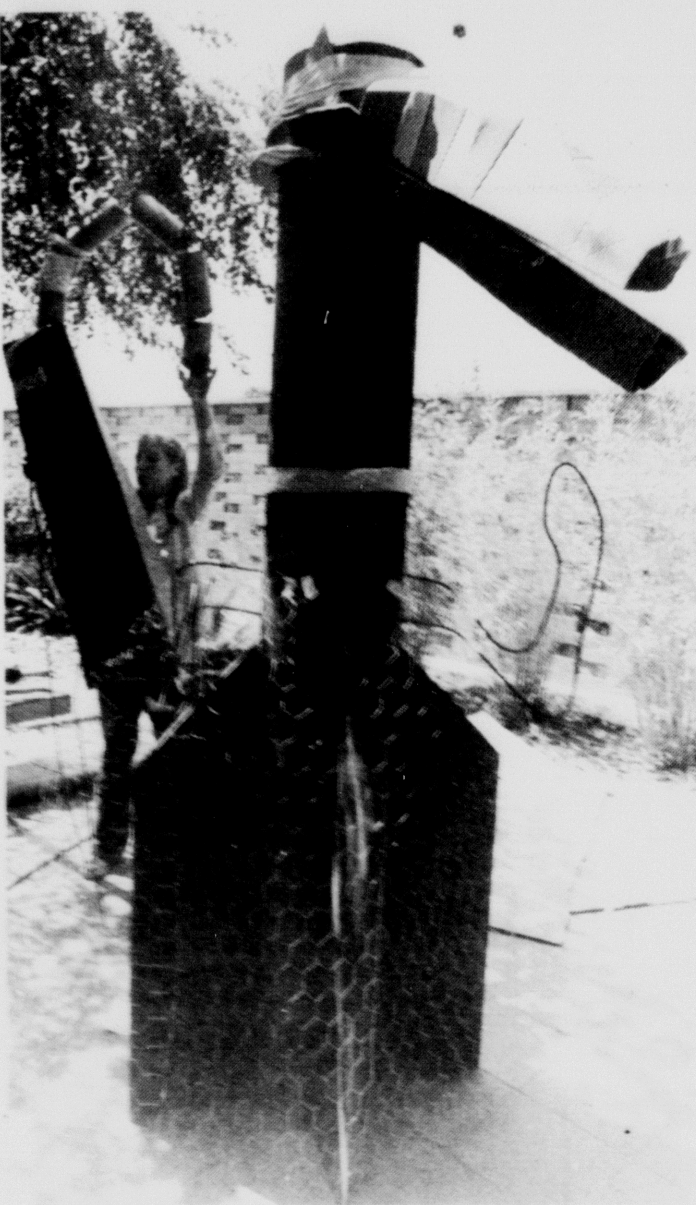

Patricia M. Henderson

A memorial service for Patricia Maxine Henderson, 55, of 330 West Highway 246, Space 47, was conducted Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Assembly of God Church in Buellton with the Rev. Phil Warren pastor, officiating.

A private cremation had been conducted under the direction of the Loper Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Henderson, who was a bookkeeper, died Wednesday in the Santa Ynez Valley Hospital. She was born in Utah and had lived in the Santa Ynez Valley the past three years.

She leaves three daughters, Shelly Henderson and Sally Reiger, both of Buellton, and Linda Cushman of Milbrae, and a son, Robin Henderson of Leucadia, and five grandchildren.

"CATCH A DRAGON by the Tail," is the theme of the new summer reading program for children at Lompoc Library and a simulated dragon, above, has been made for the activity. When a reader has completed 28 books, he or she earns an official "Dragon Tamer" badge. Children will cover the dragon with scales by reading books of their own choosing. Kim Herber checks out the dragon above. The program began today with ceremonies at 1:30 p.m.

Los Olivos commercial projects to be reviewed

The community of Los Olivos in the Santa Ynez Valley may be on its way to becoming the first in the county to impose an architectural review requirement on future construction in its commercial district, according to a planning department official.

While the communities of Summerland and Isla Vista now require architectural review of all new structures, according to planning department zoning specialist Lewis H. Humphrey, Los Olivos would be the first to put the requirement on its commercial district alone.

Acting on a request from the Los Olivos Improvement Association, the proposal for a Design Supervision Combining Regulation goes before the board of supervisors for a public hearing and probable action at 2 p.m. June 27.

Already approved by the planning commission on May 25, the D-Design controls would be added to the CH and C-2L areas of the community, an approximately five square block area taking in the central business district and a strip of parcels along State Hwy. 246.

If the plan wins board approval, according to Humphrey, the ordinance would go into effect 30 days later.

Future developments in Los Olivos commercial areas would then be required to go before the County Architectural Review Board he explained. Humphrey serves as secretary to the board, made up of professional architects, which meets twice monthly in Santa Barbara.

While Humphrey said he expects developers to take their building plans to a review board established by the Los Olivos group, he noted that the final say-so rests with the county board.

The County Architectural Review Board, according to Humphrey, will look over the plans for their architectural integrity and continuity with existing structures. Appeals would go to the planning commission.

The Los Olivos proposal apparently was very low on county priority lists, holding for over nine months before getting a public hearing before the planning commission.

Humphrey noted that several communities in the county have effectively maintained architectural themes in their business and residential districts through informal means rather than imposing the zoning requirement. He cited the Danish motif of Solvang's business district as a prime example.

Handicapped employe of year named

Arlene M. Johnson was recently selected to represent Vandenberg Air Force Base in the competition for the government-wide Outstanding Handicapped Federal Employee of the Year Award.

Milton E. Brumer, who works for the Space and Missile Test Center on base, was selected as runner-up.

The purpose of this annual program is to recognize individual achievements, and by publicizing them, to increase awareness of the contributions being made by the handicapped. This will help focus attention on opportunities for the handicapped in the Federal Service.

Mrs. Johnson, currently employed as a procurement agent with the 4392nd Aerospace Support Group, Base Procurement Division, began her Federal service in 1957 as a clerk typist, GS-3, in the Base Procurement Office at Edwards AFB, California. After a three-year break in service, Mrs. Johnson resumed her career, accepting employment in the Base Procurement Office at Vandenberg.

Except for the short break in service, she has been continuously employed in the same office since 1960, progressing from a GS-3 to her current grade of GS-9. The advancements did not come without hard work, dedication, and a strong determination to prove her capabilities.

Stricken with polio, resulting in complete paralysis of her lower limbs, she has been confined to a wheelchair since adolescence.

Space shuttle pilots anxious to fly on own

EDWARDS AFB (UPI) — The astronauts who "flew" America's space orbiter vehicle during the weekend marveled at the "spectacular view" but say they are anxious to unhook from the craft's Boeing 747 mothership.

"I'm looking forward to that day in a month or so when we cut loose and it flies on its own," said astronaut Gordon Fullerton after the 55-minute flight Saturday morning.

That day could come as early as July 27, according to test manager Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, but only after three more flights bolted piggyback to the top of the 747 transport.

The 75-ton USS Enterprise shuttle craft is scheduled to make its first space flight in March, 1979. It is the first space ship ever designed to be used more than once.

The orbiter and the 747, called the "odd couple of the space age," have made three previous flights together but carried no astronauts.

Although Fullerton insisted that the shuttle's systems operated at 99 per cent efficiency, there were some minor problems. For one, there was radio interference appar-

L.A. county facing strike in hospitals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County hospital workers have voted overwhelmingly to walk off their jobs June 30 because of the deadlock in contract negotiations, union officials announced Sunday.

Elinor Glenn, general manager of the Service Employees International Union, Local 434, said the walkout would involve 8,000 employees of the county's five major hospitals and dozens of county-run clinics.

Most union leaders representing 70,000 county workers have charged management with provoking the strike action by offering only minor improvements in union contracts.

County officials insist progress is being made and a settlement is near.

But Mrs. Glenn said the strike vote by the hospital workers union was a result of the "complete futility of efforts at the bargaining table on such human issues as understaffing, inadequate patient care and the right of workers to keep up with living costs for themselves and their families."

Mrs. Glenn said management has "stalled and fiddled" since negotiations began.

State Legislature facing frantic pace

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The pace picks up to near-frantic levels in the California Legislature this week as lawmakers attempt to act on scores of bills before they recess Friday for the summer break.

Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, chairman of the Senate-Assembly conference committee working on the state budget, predicts a compromise version of the budget will be sent to both houses by Thursday.

Both budgets are several hundred million dollars higher than the $14.3 billion program proposed in January by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. The Assembly version totaled $14.7 billion while the Senate's stood at $14.6 billion.

However, both plans envision a total spending program next year of more than $16 billion when school finance and property tax relief legislation is enacted.

Brown must sign the budget by midnight June 30, start of the next fiscal year.

Action on property tax relief and school financing is less certain.

Leaders of both houses were ently from a radio station to the south causing momentary blackouts and some loss of data aboard the orbiter.

"It won't happen next time," said Fullerton's copilot, astronaut Fred W. Haise Jr.

The second in the series of four tests will be June 28.

Technical problems caused a 24-hour delay in the flight Friday. A balky inertial measurement unit — one of three aboard that Slayton described as "helping you to know up from down" — still did not work Saturday. And one of the five computers which works and the craft's autopilot had to be replaced.

Haise said there was quite a bit of airframe noise — "a low frequency roar" — but he said it caused no problems.

Carter answers Pravda

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that his human rights policy "will not be changed," President Carter has responded sharply to a charge in the Soviet newspaper Pravda that his campaign is designed to cover a new U.S. arms buildup.

His campaign, Carter said, is an embarrassment to the Soviet Union "and to other countries with totalitarian governments."

"Our commitment to human rights is independent of other motives and will not be changed," said Carter on arrival at the White House from a weekend at Camp David, Md., late Sunday.

He said U.S. military strength "is obviously a matter that has no relation at all to the human rights commitment," and asked "How does it serve the cause of human rights for the Soviets to be attributing motives like this to us?"

The Communist party newspaper said in its weekly international review that "many reports from Washington" concern new weapons programs, which it saw as evidence the United States is "preparing the ground for another dangerous spiral of the arms race."

"Apparently the noisy campaign around human rights is called upon to cover up quite different designs than defense of those rights," Pravda said.

Carter said the human rights campaign "dramatizes the issue and has aroused the awareness of the human rights question by all national leaders."

IT WAS moving day Saturday for this 32-foot boat hull which has been sort of a landmark off Ocean Avenue for the past several years. Owner Rene Aeberhard employed a huge crane, a special "cradle" and a flatbed truck to move the hull from Lompoc to Santa Maria. The boat, which will eventually be a two-master and weigh nearly 11 tons, will be an ocean-going vessel. It will take approximately two years to successfully complete the project.

Verification key to arms agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The biggest and perhaps insurmountable problem facing negotiators of a strategic weapons agreement is finding a verification system so each side can tell if the other is cheating, disarmament experts say.

William Van Cleave, a member of the first SALT negotiating team, says even the current arms agreement with the Soviet Union no longer can be adequately policed because of advances in technology since it was signed.

The experts agree in general that an agreement without verification would be worse than none at all, since it could foster mutual mistrust and eventually, perhaps, an accelerated arms race.

In the 1972 SALT agreement the verification problem was handled by sophisticated satellites and radar, as well as radio listening posts, monitoring each other's activities.

Van Cleave argues that the satellites verify only launchers, not missiles. In 1972, it was assumed one launcher meant one missile. Now the Soviets have developed a reloading capacity, so another missile can be dropped into a tube within a few minutes and the verification is no longer valid.

One American official said Van Cleave overstates the case — that reloading is not as easy as he and others claim.

But that official acknowledges verification is getting more complicated, especially in the case of weapons that can be moved around.

Consider the problem of verifying a cruise missile. A long-distance cruise missile — essentially a pilotless jet aircraft — looks exactly like a short-range missile from the outside.

It is likely long-range missiles would be limited by a new SALT agreement, but short-range missiles would be excluded.

Cuba refuses correspondents

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Cuban government has refused to issue visas to two United Press International representatives who were scheduled to visit Cuba this week with a trade delegation of Midwest businessmen.

The Cuban government issued visas for representatives of 10 other news organizations, however. The reporters, photographers and film crews were to accompany some 45 representatives of Midwest business firms and their wives to Cuba today for a four-day visit and negotiations with Cuban officials.

The Cuban government would give no specific reasons Sunday for denying visas for Bill Ferguson, UPI editor of broadcast services, and Bruno Torres, Chicago Newspictures bureau manager.

Kirby Jones, a former aide to Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and one of the organizers of the trip, said the Cubans would only say that "the list of news organizations cleared for the visit would be all they could handle on this trip."

Brezhnev arrives in France

PARIS (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev arrived in France today on his first visit abroad since taking on the title of president a week ago. Police went on maximum alert because of an unprecedented outburst of anti-Soviet incidents.

The 70-year-old Brezhnev arrived to an unusually glamorous welcome, but he appeared tired. His face was puffy and he walked with a shuffle.

Brezhnev and his host, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, both pledged on the Soviet leader's arrival at Orly airport to do their best to contribute to détente and to cooperation between their two countries.

Differences in approach to world problems showed in the opening statements of the two leaders. The French president underlined the fact that "each of our nations remains responsible for its own security."

This remark apparently referred to France's continued refusal to join international disarmament talks.

The Soviet president pointedly replied, "Disarmament would be profitable for both the Soviet and French peoples."

Giscard said, "We realize there are differences in our conception of détente... but we know that the alternative to détente is confrontation and the destruction of our peoples."

Brezhnev replied, "The work that we are going to do here will be useful for the development of further friendship between our two countries and for universal peace. We will work for the progress of our contemporaries and for generations to come."

Brezhnev arrived at midday aboard an Ilyushin-62 Aeroflot, the Soviet national airline. He and Giscard shook hands warmly.

Exhaustive probe in death of Girl Scouts

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (UPI) — In the week since three Girl Scouts were sexually molested and murdered, officers have interviewed more than 100 persons, administered a half-dozen polygraph tests and searched the murder site with trained dogs.

They have made no arrests, but one of the men in charge of the investigation says the officers are getting closer to determining a suspect.

"Every day that we proceed we are getting closer. There has never been a period that it hasn't been more productive as we go along," District Attorney Sid Wise said Sunday. "Every day we are discovering new things to look at and analyze and interpret."

Thousands of manhours have been spent searching and researching the grounds of Camp Scott and surrounding farms and it has been determined the tape used to bind the girls and the rope used to strangle one of them was stolen from an adjacent farm burglarized about the time of the murders, authorities said.

Kissinger charges secret diplomacy

LONDON (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says the Carter administration is doing the same thing he once criticized for — conducting diplomacy in secret.

Kissinger, in a copyrighted interview with the London Sunday newspaper The Observer, said, "The new administration is conducting foreign policy in terms of the sharing of tactical information no less restrictively than we did."

Kissinger, who once described himself as the "lone ranger" of international diplomacy, told interviewers Douglass Cater and Kenneth Harris that most serious negotiations require "an element of confidentiality."

"There are many ideas you try out in a negotiation that, if the other side accepts, are quite tolerable, but which, if they are publicized before they are accepted, become very difficult to handle," he said.

"A foreign government must have the assurance that it can explore ideas without having the whole thing public before it is concluded," Kissinger said. "It makes compromise more possible."

He said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and his department "may find it painful to admit" but secret diplomacy is "unavoidable."

Kissinger said that real détente and real coexistence with the Soviet Union are possible, but remarked, "It requires that we prevent their achieving success in undermining Western Europe."

Firefighters battle blazes in Southwest

United Press International

Weary firefighters finally checked a 10,000-acre blaze just three miles short of the city limits of Los Alamos, N.M. Sunday, but in Arizona, a sudden wind shift sent another wildfire roaring out of control to threaten homes and blacken 400 acres in two hours.

Three other fires were burning across 4,000 acres of New Mexico timber and brushland and another major blaze raged out of control just east of Flagstaff, in the northern part of Arizona.

About 30 homes near Sierra Vista in southern Arizona were evacuated ahead of a 2,400-acre blaze that flared again in shifting winds after 400 firefighters from six Western states — including soldiers from Ft. Huachuca and inmates from the federal prison camp at Safford, Ariz. — had battled it to a standstill.

"We've got bulldozers in Miller Canyon," said Doug Salver of the Coronado National Forest. "That area is threatened most, and we're also committing ground tankers."

In New Mexico, more than 1,000 men manned firelines on the periphery of a 15-square-mile blaze that threatened historic Los Alamos, birthplace of the atomic bomb and still a major scientific community.

The fire, which erupted last Friday, picked up awesome speed through the tinder-dry Santa Fe National Forest.

Election upset in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Jack Lynch and his Fianna Fail party have ousted Premier Liam Cosgrave's ruling coalition in a stunning election upset, winning the largest parliamentary margin in the history of Irish politics.

Lynch, a former premier, and his party won a 20-seat edge over Cosgrave's Fine Gael-Labor coalition, which had been favored to win the election. Final results from last week's balloting were not available until this weekend.

The Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) party won 84 seats in the 148-seat Dail, compared with the 60 accumulated by Cosgrave's coalition. Independents won four seats.

Lynch was holding talks today on forming a new government, which will take office July 5 when parliament reconvenes.

Lynch has indicated he will press for a new British initiative on neighboring Northern Ireland and an early meeting with British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

It is believed Lynch will play a greater personal role than Cosgrave did in attempts to ease the bitter sectarian conflict in Northern Ireland.

Government spokesmen saw their crushing election defeat as a direct result of the international recession with its backlash of inflation and unemployment.

"We tried to cushion the economy as much as possible," a government spokesman said.

Five additional branches and units were represented at the special event. A covered dish dinner and special cake were served following the day's program.

Wake-a-thon earns funds for Meals on Wheels

A very special party celebrated the 13th birthday anniversary of Laura Saladino, daughter of Ronald and Mary Saladino, 1800 Berkeley Drive, Crestview. Guests were invited for a 24-hour span, from a Friday at 6 p.m. until Saturday 6 p.m. The occasion was a wake-a-thon, planned by the hostess as a fund-raising event for the local Meals on Wheels program. More than $300 was raised through by-the-hour pledges of friends, and has been given to Alice Jackson, MOW director.

Festivities began with a potluck dinner. Guests brought Mexican food for the menu. It was suggested the girls make their own contribution, saving work for their mothers. Beverage, salad and dessert was furnished by the hostess.

The girls were also told to bring sleeping bags — "not for sleeping," a game or two, records, a stuffed animal toy, their pajamas and clothes for the following day.

Guests included Lisa Gable who managed to stay awake from 6-12 p.m.; Lisa Saladino, from 6 p.m. - 9 a.m. Saturday; Kristen Foster and Lynette Farnum, 6 p.m. - 10 a.m.; Colleen Leigh, Carol Lynch and the hostess, 6 p.m. -

10:30 a.m.; Shelley Ploch, 6 p.m. - 10:45 a.m.; Nancy Shumer, 6 p.m. - 11 a.m. Where the official hours awake ranged from 6 to 17, actual hours awake for the girls were 25-27 hours since all had begun a full day of school classes from 8 a.m. Friday, ten hours before the official start.

The girls used their creative talents and abilities to entertain themselves through their sleepless vigil. They prepared their own meals, took turns in clean-up duties and invented games and activities to while away the time. One had to leave early because of a commitment but returned at noon to join her friends. Those who wished and had their parents' permission, finally used their sleeping bags, dreaming through the afternoon and night before a Sunday breakfast.

Dear Abby

Mockingbird sings away the blues

DEAR ABBY: DESPARATE wrote that his recently deceased wife had so loved the song of the mockingbird that had sung in their yard each morning that she made a recording of it. He said the same bird returns to sing each day, and his song brings back such painful memories that he feels he must either destroy that bird or go mad.

Perhaps we are neighbors. A mockingbird has been singing in my area, too. My husband who died last year, loved the song of that bird, but it neither pains nor depresses me to hear it. Instead it gives me a feeling of inner peace, comfort and joy — as though God were telling me that my dear one is still nearby.

"E"

DEAR ABBY: For DESPARATE who wishes to shoo away the mockingbird that perches on his wire:

Buy a rubber snake in a toy department and twist it around the wire. We use them in our fruit trees to keep the birds from pecking at the fruit. (I'm told that a long nylon stocking waving in the breeze is just as effective.)

OCEANSIDE

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the man who wanted to get rid of the mockingbird because it was bringing back sad memories of his deceased wife, I think I have the solution. He mentioned that his wife had recorded the bird's song. If he will play the recording back to the bird while it's singing, the bird will think it is another male intruding in his territory, and after a few unsuccessful attempts to locate his competition, he will leave and never return. It works.

TRIED IT IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: Please tell DESPARATE that the pain he feels is within himself, not from the bird, and killing the bird or chasing it away will not ease that pain. The mockingbird's song could help relieve his pain if he would only view it differently.

The song of the mockingbird is a gift that his dear departed wife has left him, since she still lives in his heart. He should enjoy the memory of how much his wife loved that early morning music while the rest of the world was quiet.

A.W.M.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell DESPARATE I had a similar experience. A pair of cardinals made their nest under our window. My husband and I watched and worried over them together. Then I too lost my husband. After the cardinals left the nest, I had the shrub cut down because I couldn't bear to hear their song.

That was last year. This year they've returned and made their nest nearby. Although tears are on my cheeks now as I write this, I love to hear those cardinals sing because they bring back so many fond memories. Faith in God and time helps us.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Historical society gets donated land

The board of directors of the Santa Ynez Valley Historical Society has announced that a 50 by 200 foot lot on Sagunto Street in Santa Ynez adjacent to the historical society building has been given to the society by Mrs. T.M. Parks and Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Janeway.

Mrs. Parks and the Janeways plan to erect a large, fireproof building which will house their respective collections of wagons, carriages, harnesses and other related items.

A society spokesman said construction is scheduled to start as soon as the necessary permits are acquired. "This phase will complete the original quadrangle plan and should be a great addition to our museum," society president Paul Burtness declared.

In other historical society news, Burtness said several events have taken place at the museum. County firemen held a dedication ceremony to open their display of old fire equipment. In addition, the society was given a two-wheel firefighting trailer, vintage 1925, by the Union Oil Co.

An annual Treasure Sale was rated a huge success and netted $2,500.

Burtness also reported that tiny Santa Ynez Library next to the society building as well as the Rancho El Alamo Pintado adobe have been designated as County Historical Landmarks. Dedication ceremonies will be held at both sites as soon as the signs are completed.

A VARIED program will mark an annual Bethania Lutheran Church Vacation Church School starting today and continuing through Friday. Youngsters who will enter kindergarten in September and through the sixth grade are eligible to enroll. Among those participating are Adam Scherer, seated left, Glenys Mee and Kristin Scherer, and Heather Mee who discusses the program with school director Hank Scherer.

Committee meeting time set

The current projects subcommittee of the Santa Ynez Valley Advisory Committee will meet on a permanent basis every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Solvang Justice Court. Zita Nielsen, subcommittee chairman has announced.

The one exception will be on the second Tuesday of the month when the parent advisory committee meets. Mrs. Nielsen also reported that a joint meeting with the circulation subcommittee is set for June 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the courtroom in Solvang.

Republican Women welcome two

Condy Brock and Deanne Lee, two members of this year's graduating class at Santa Ynez Valley High School, have been given memberships in the Santa Ynez Valley Republican Women Federated by Mrs. Pat Sullivan.

Both plan to attend Fresno State and will be mailed copies of the Valley Voter, organizational monthly publication.

Graduation day

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman and his wife attended commencement ceremonies Sunday afternoon, watching their daughter receive her diploma from the UCLA Law School.

Susan Haldeman was one of 8,000 students who received bachelor and graduate degrees from the University which is Haldeman's alma mater.

Haldeman enters federal prison at Lompoc, Calif., Wednesday, to begin serving a 30-month-to-eight-year sentence for his role in Watergate.

Emergency feed program given county extension

The Emergency Feed Program and Cattle Transportation Assistance Program in Santa Barbara County has been extended through Sept. 1. Ensley E. Wood, county executive director of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, has announced.

The program, under which eligible livestock producers in the county may receive financial assistance in purchasing feed grains and roughage up to 10 pounds per cow or other animal equivalent not to exceed 50 per cent of the actual cost and which provides financial assistance in transporting animals to available pasture, have been in effect in the county since last April 20.

Wood said eligible livestock producers who will not have sufficient feed for their animals during the extended period should visit the ASCS office at 142 E. Carrillo St., Santa Barbara and apply for assistance for the extended period.

Wood said the producers must furnish the following information to his office: number and kind of livestock on hand, number of acres of feed grains or other roughage (alfalfa, failed grain crop for hay or grazing) for harvest on the farm and expected dates for beginning harvest, and number of acres of pasture, dry and irrigated, that is now or will become available for the producer's livestock and expected date it will become available.

Previous participants in the EFP will be asked to report the amount of feed harvested since April 20 and disposition of such feed, such as amount fed to ineligible livestock, amount fed to eligible livestock, amount sold and amount on hand.

New participants in the program will be required to note the amount of feed on hand and the amount of feed sold since Dec. 15, 1976. Wood said extension of existing approval is not automatic. Livestock producers who have been approved under the program must file a new application at the county office for assistance for the extended period. On applications filed within 30 days prior to July 16, the date of June 16 will be considered as beginning time of the feeding period.

Tim Winger starts as new postmaster

Tim Winger of the U.S. Postal Service's western regional office in San Bruno, assumed his duties today as acting Solvang postmaster.

He will replace Jerry Chastain who has been acting postmaster since the retirement in February of postmaster Richard K. Kintzel. Chastain is returning to his permanent post as postmaster at Santa Margarita.

Gene Howard, section manager in Santa Barbara said a permanent postmaster for Solvang could be announced within two months. He noted that a delay in making a permanent appointment has been caused by the selection board's decision to open up the job to three other candidates in addition to three previously nominated.

The six candidates will be interviewed by the selection board and a decision is expected to be made sometime in August.

Parenthood course to begin on Tuesday

A summer series in Preparation for Childhood and Parenthood begins Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Hal W. Hamm Library at the Santa Ynez Valley High School.

The course is taught by Mrs. Susan Turpin as part of the continuing education program at Allan Hancock College and is given without charge. Anyone interested in pregnancy, birth and parenthood may attend, Mrs. Turpin said. Pregnant women are encouraged to bring a coach, she stated and added that husbands are welcome.

Several birth techniques are presented, along with films, slides and tapes. Topics include home and hospital births, nutrition, breast feeding and parenting. Mrs. Turpin has asked that students wear comfortable clothing. They are asked to bring two pillows for exercising. Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Turpin at 688-6692.

Saccharin ban delay possible due to new cancer evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commissioner Donald Kennedy says his Food and Drug Administration's plan to ban the use of saccharin may be delayed "possibly a couple of months" by the new study linking the sweetener to bladder cancer in men.

The FDA had hoped to impose the ban in August, but Kennedy said a delay probably will be necessary so scientists and the public have a chance to study and comment on the new information, and possibly broaden the ban.

Meanwhile, he said "if a male member of my family were drinking diet soft drinks (which contain saccharin) I'd sure work hard to get him to stop."

The study, to be published in the British Medical Journal, Lancet, was conducted by the National Cancer Institute of Canada. It was the first finding that the use of artificial sweeteners increase the cancer risk in humans.

Bladder cancer occurs in men four times more often than in women and the study drew no conclusions on how saccharin and other artificial sweeteners affect females.

Kennedy said he did not know when the full study would be published but the preliminary version he saw convinced him of a "greater certainty that saccharin is a human carcinogen."

He dismissed the risk in delaying a ban on the sweetener, however, because "although we are somewhat sure that saccharin is a human carcinogen, we also understand its risk is cumulative, so I don't

Mondale sees Carter's results better than LBJ

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Vice President Walter Mondale said this weekend at a conference on energy that President Carter has had better results with Congress than the late President Johnson, at least in one case.

In his keynote speech at the National Energy Dialogue, sponsored by the National Democratic Forum, Mondale said:

"When President Johnson, the legislative wizard, called for the creation of the Department of Transportation, it was two years from the date he asked until it was actually enacted."

"I'm delighted that Congress in three and a half months from the date the Department of Energy was proposed is on the

Nation's weather

United Press International Thunderstorms spread over Kansas early today, boosting the threat of flash flooding in the rain-weary state.

Rain spread over much of the western Plains from Colorado to Texas. Other storms stretched from Tennessee to Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia.

The National Weather Service reported several larger streams in Kansas were already at or above flood stage and said the latest onslaught of rain could push them over their banks.

The Marias des Cygnes River at Reading, Kan., climbed to 11 feet over flood stage Sunday — only about two inches below its record crest.

Three straight days of thunderstorms has caused widespread damage in Kansas. Wheat crops were beaten down, homes and schools were damaged by howling winds and streams caused scattered flood damage.

Most of the 200 families ordered out of their trailer homes in a flooded trailer court in the northeast Kansas town of Ogden Saturday returned to their waterlogged trailers Sunday to start cleaning up.

But officials said more evacuations may be necessary if the rains persist.

The Red Cross in Ogden said seven trailers were destroyed by water which spilled out of the Seven Mile Creek after some six inches of rain fell in the area Friday and Saturday. Major damage was reported to 62 trailers.

Early morning temperatures today ranged from 88 at El Paso, Tex., to 46 at both Craig, Colo., and Flagstaff, Ariz.

Toth disturbed more by secret Russian police

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Toth, the Los Angeles Times correspondent who was arrested by Soviet KGB officials last week in Moscow, said Sunday the attitude of the secret police disturbed him more than any part of his detention.

"They were almost out of control," he said Sunday after he, his wife and three children arrived at Los Angeles International Airport.

"The sweat was pouring off them, almost like animals out of control."

"You just didn't know if a rational sense would prevail in this situation."

Toth, of Troop, Pa., first was arrested June 11 on a Moscow street near his home, moments after Soviet scientist Valery Petukhov had handed him a sheaf of papers purporting to deal with successful experiments in the field of parapsychology.

'Gourmet junk food' — the next food novelty?

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Junk food is no longer the private domain of pimply faced teen-agers and the schoolyard crowd. It now has a more expensive cousin — "Gourmet Junk Food."

It was one of the most talked about items at the National Fancy Food and Confection Show held in New Orleans last week — even more than the $129-per-pound Russian beluga caviar, the expensive hams and cheeses and the fancy rum cakes.

It comes in garbage pails and there are no pretensions that it's good for you.

"We're totally oblivious to cancer, cholesterol and any other malady," said Cedric Waggoner, president of Harry London Candies of North Canton, Ohio, and the brains behind Gourmet Junk Food.

Waggoner's company specializes in novelty food, such as Weird Cedric's Butterscotch, the London Mint, Super Kisses and The Ultimate Pacifier — a nine-ounce chocolate chunk shaped like a pacifier. But in the year Gourmet Junk Food's been on the market, it has become one of the biggest sellers, he said.

It's sold completely with tongue in cheek — except for the price, which is usually $2.50 per can.

"On a rating from one to 10, Gourmet Junk Food rates a solid 2 1/2," Waggoner said.

"We've tested our junk food in bird feeders throughout Canton, Ohio, and the results were incredible. According to our highly untrained observers, our gourmet junk food was preferred three to one by red birds (over other junk foods)," he said.

Waggoner said many people are "strung out on ordinary junk food" and would be better off eating his candy, which consists of crisp rice and raw cashews coated with butterscotch. He said he got the idea when listening to people talking about junk food.

"Well, everybody talks about junk food. And I think (Sen. George) McGovern is going to go on television within the next six months and hold hearings on junk food," he said. "So I think I'm ahead of the pack."

Dorothy Feigelman, owner of the Horn of Plenty gourmet shop in New Orleans, told Waggoner she can tell when visitors to her store spot the product.

"People walk in and we hear the giggle — and the moment we hear it we know it's sold," she said.

Califano claims Carter determined on health plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano told the nation's largest organization of doctors Sunday the Carter Administration is determined to create a national health insurance plan.

"The average American worker works one month each year to pay health care costs," Califano told delegates to the American Medical Association convention. "Government — representing the people and the consumers — must play an increasing role in health care."

"We will fulfill our responsibility best with your help and cooperation, but we must fulfill our responsibility nonetheless," he said. "National health insurance to protect all Americans from the crushing burden of medical expenses is essential."

Califano said it is "important for you to understand first-hand how the new administration views the health care industry."

We perceive health care in America today as big business.

He added, "Reasonable cost has not been the strong suit of American medicine or most of its physicians," and said the government's goal is "a high standard of health care for everyone — at manageable cost."

The HEW secretary also said the government regards the health care industry as "virtually non-competitive. There is virtually no competition among doctors or among hospitals. And, just as important, there is precious little competition

AMA study reveals results of video violence on children

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Medical Association says "the weight of medical opinion" backs up the belief that television violence causes mental and physical traumas in children.

A public forum dealing with the issue of television mayhem — particularly in regard to the effects on children — highlighted today's opening of the AMA's annual convention.

The AMA released a poll Sunday reiterating its beliefs that video violence and illness are closely related.

In the poll, doctors said heightened aggression in children, nightmares, epileptic seizures and injuries resulting from imitating tv incidents are among problems that may stem from video violence.

The findings were published in the AMA's weekly newspaper, American Medical News, and released at the organization's meeting.

"A reduced amount of violent programming seems to be in the cards for next fall's network schedules," Dr. James H. Sammon, AMA's vice president, told the convention Sunday.

He said the apparent improvement in programming is due to a number of groups and factors.

"But this year the ongoing outcry against violent programming has had a heavier impact than ever before, because this year the weight of medical opinion was added to it."

The survey showed that 94 per cent of doctors polled believe there is too much violence on the home screen.

And half of the surveyed physicians suspect the effects of tv violence may be showing up in their offices and hospitals.

One key question asked was: "Have any of your patients presented behavioral symptoms and/or physical problems

The ultimate body ache

By TERRY DAY

Without a doubt the marathon is the most grueling race in track and field.

For 26 miles, 385 yards a person's body is really put through the paces and only the physically elite survive the long road race.

A marathon has been added to the Lompoc Distance Club's Distance Carnival and according to meet director Joe Sciamie, the first Valley of the Flowers Marathon is expected to be very successful.

"We sent out over 300 applications for the marathon and expect another 100-200 people to show up the day of the race."

The race will be run Sunday at 8 a.m. and will begin from Huyck Stadium.

With an estimated 500 runners Lompoc may experience its first 'people' jam. And on a Sunday morning no less.

The idea of adding the marathon to the Distance Carnival came to Sciamie and he discussed it with members of the Club.

"I threw out a suggestion to John Perkins, who is very active in the club, and he said it sounded like a pretty good idea."

"We knew Lompoc would be a good place to have the marathon because the weather is mild during the summertime. It was just a thought we had at the time," Sciamie said.

"We brought it up at our February meeting and everybody thought it was a great idea."

"Bill Arnerich has done most of the work in the marathon area. He is coordinating people who will work the aid stations."

"There are a lot of details to be worked out and probably just doing the marathon would be a full-time job but we are committed to the other races," Sciamie said.

The marathon has the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and certification of the course was to be given prior to the race.

Conditioning for a marathon must take dedication that sometimes borders on the fanatical.

A "Sunday jogger" cannot say, "Today I will run 26 miles, 385 yards" and expect to finish after jogging around the block once.

According to Sciamie, most of the top marathoners will run (rarely jog) 50-60 miles a week. Exceptional cases might run 100 per week. Those 100-milers are the fanatics, we would suspect.

If anyone saw the ABC special with Olympic marathoner Frank Shorter and the meal he eats before a race, it would seem impossible that one man of any size could put away as much food as Shorter did then run 26 miles.

Sciamie explained the carbohydrates in the meal were supposed to help marathoners during the race. "But I would think a runner should load up on carbohydrates at least three days before the race so it could be absorbed into his system," Sciamie said.

"I would say that most runners would be taking in more carbohydrates a week before the race, but I wouldn't think they would really load up the day of the race."

At any rate, Sciamie and the Distance Club should be commended for undertaking such a giant task.

The Rov Grossini family has added another player to the professional baseball ranks from Lompoc. Leroy Grossini, an eighth round draft pick, signed with the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

Grossini, from Lompoc High and Santa Barbara City College, is headed for Calgary, Canada where he will be playing rookie ball.

We would think the Los Angeles Times would correct a mistake after one time — but letting it slip through twice? Unheard of!

Seems Ross Newhan, who follows the California Angels, referred to Roy Howell as "Jim Howell" in two articles when the Halos were in Toronto for a three-game series.

We asked Howell how he felt about that and his answer was pretty predictable.

"That shows that the guy (Newhan) doesn't do his homework or pay attention to what the hell he's doing. If a guy gets your name wrong it's because he's not paying attention." Obviously.

Ross, it's spelled R-O-Y.

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Of all the countless thousands of putts he has sunk in his seven years as a professional, none ever gave Hubert Green the degree of satisfaction this one did — or more of an empty feeling.

Here he was the new U.S. Open Champion, with his first major title ever, the one every golfer dreams of, and he wasn't even able to enjoy it.

He had just knocked in a difficult 4-footer on the final hole, one of those character-builders, which separate the lion-hearted from the chicken-hearted, and he was a 1-stroke winner over Lou Graham as well as being $45,000 richer, only he didn't look that way at all.

Green stood a foot or so from where his ball still lay in the cup after he holed it out, and from the tight, almost sad expression on his face, you'd have thought he was a loser instead of the winner.

A woman's telephone call might have had a lot to do with the way Green felt although he did everything he could later to brush it off.

"I'd rather not go into it, if you don't mind," he said later. "There was nothing I could do about it. It was out of my hands."

What happened was that a clerk in the Oklahoma City office of the FBI had received a call from a woman who did not identify herself while Green was playing the 10th hole during Sunday's final round at Southern Hills here.

She told the FBI clerk she had three men friends who were in trouble, and the reason she was calling was because she wanted to save them from further trouble. They were on their way to Tulsa to shoot Hubie Green on the 15th green.

All this was revealed after Green had won, not by Green himself, but by Sandy Tatum, vice president of the USGA and chairman of its championship committee.

Tatum said his people were informed of the threat on Green's life by Lt. Charles Jones of the Tulsa police, and they were faced with the difficult decision — "Hobson's choice," Tatum called it — of whether to tell Green about it or not.

"We decided Hubie ought to know what we knew," said Tatum.

Green was informed before teeing off on the 15th hole, which he parred.

"Hubie was something else," said Tatum, talking about the way Green accepted the news. "There wasn't a flicker except for that marvelous sense of humor he has. There was no hesitation on Hubie Green's part whatsoever. He simply went over and hit a drive on the 15th and when he came to the 15th green, he hit an absolutely perfect putt. I think it was one of the most remarkable exhibitions of grace under pressure that I have ever seen."

Green listened quietly as Tatum spoke.

He looked as if he wished he could forget the whole thing. Jones and 15 other members of the Tulsa police force had brought him to the press tent and they were with him when he left to escort him to the clubhouse.

While he had little to say over the way he actually felt about the threat on his life, the 30-year-old Alabamian held nothing back about his feelings coming to the 18th with a two-stroke lead over Graham, already in the clubhouse.

"I thought I had it all wrapped up," he said. "I said don't hit it in the left bunker, don't play it in the right bunker. Bogey is all you need, that's all. I hit a real good drive and after my second shot went into the rough, I said to myself, don't knock the half into the left bunker. So you know where I hit it?"

Into the left bunker. He came out quickly, too quickly it seemed and while his shot landed on the green, it still was 30 feet from the hole. That's where he putted short and left himself four feet away.

"I wasn't Cool Hand Luke out there," Green laughed.

Green told himself to make sure he took his putter back slowly as he stood over that 4-footer on the 18th. He stroked the ball smartly and it went into the cup.

Nonetheless he admitted "choking."

"I did choke," he said. "I bogeyed the last hole."

Hubie Green shouldn't have apologized for that.

He didn't have to.

Yanks to fire Billy Martin?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billy Martin is all finished with the Yankees. They'll make it official with a formal announcement in another day or so at which time Yogi Berra will be named the Yankees' new manager.

It will be the second time around for him, having led the Yankees to a pennant the only year he handled them in 1964.

Martin has been skating on thin ice for the past five weeks when owner George Steinbrenner came close to firing him over differences with the front office. Gabe Paul, the Yankees' president, saved Martin's job for him then, but even Paul couldn't help him this time.

The final straw was the blowup in Boston between Martin and slugger Reggie Jackson Saturday during a ballgame at Fenway Park seen by millions on national tv. The two men nearly came to blows in the Yankee dugout with Martin having to be restrained from going after Jackson by Berra and fellow coach Elston Howard.

The episode didn't sit well with either Steinbrenner or Paul. And three straight losses to the Red Sox, capped by Sunday's 11-1 nose-rubbing, only made matters worse.

AN ALL-STAR team comprised of Cabrillo and Lompoc high girls' softball players will take on the Sepulveda Raiders, the American Softball Assn. national champions in an exhibition game. The game will start at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Thompson Park. Team members are: Standing (from left) Diane Jeffers, Lisa Boyer, Carmela Martinez, Lori Klitz, Lauren Morehart, Jan Jeffers, Sheri Carroll and Beth Gile. Kneeling are: Mary Villalobos and Carol Gonzales.

Torborg takes over as Indians' manager

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Jeff Torborg, who took over as manager of the Cleveland Indians Sunday after Frank Robinson was fired, says he will stress pitching and defense to turn the Indians into a winning team.

"I was born and raised in the Dodger organization and they lived and died by it — and I believe in it," said Torborg, who made a successful debut Sunday when the Indians swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers.

Torborg said his first priority will be to "get the pitching staff straightened out."

"We just haven't gotten any consistency out of the pitching staff," said Torborg, who at 35 is the youngest manager in the majors. "We felt going into the season we had as good a pitching staff as there was in the league."

But the inadequate pitching along with ineffective hitting led to the Indians' 28-31 record. Both factors also led to the downfall of Robinson, who in 1974 became major league baseball's first black manager.

Torborg, the club's former bullpen coach, will manage the Tribe through the 1978 season. He says he will "try to do my own thing."

"I'll just do what I feel," said the former catcher who spent 10 seasons in the majors, seven with Los Angeles and three with the California Angels. Robinson, 41, seemed relaxed after being told of his doom.

"The hardest thing about managing is walking away from it," said Robinson.

Brawl inspires Dodgers to 3-1 win over Cubs

United Press International
Tom is terrific and Cincinnati is a nice place, but Don Sutton likes Los Angeles, thank you.

That sums up the reaction of star pitcher Don Sutton of the Dodgers to the presence of the former four-time 20-game winner of the Mets. Tom Seaver, on the two-time world champion Reds.

"We're 7½ games in front and that's a nice place to be," said Sutton Sunday after pitching a four-hitter that gave the Dodgers a 3-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs and raised his record to 8-2. "I still say we're good enough to win."

Sutton struck out four and walked two. He yielded the Cubs' run in the second inning on a walk to Bobby Murcer. Jerry Morales' single, Manny Trillo's sacrifice and Steve Ontiveros' groundout.

Lee Lacy knocked in two runs for the Dodgers with a homer and a double and Ron Cey accounted for their other run with his 16th homer of the year.

The game was marred by a bench-clearing third-inning fight which started after Rick Reuschel hit Reggie Smith with a pitch. Smith limped to the mound and hit Reuschel with an overhand right whereupon both benches emptied. Reuschel, Manager Herman Franks and catcher George Mitterwald of the Cubs and Smith were ejected from the game.

Expos 8, Reds 4:

The Expos kayoed Woodie Fryman during a seven-run fourth-inning outburst which included two-run homers by Gary Carter and Andre Dawson and a three-run homer by Ellis Valentine. Wayne Twitchell won his first game of the season, allowing three runs and seven hits in five innings before turning over the mound to Dan Stanhouse.

Mets 8, Astros 2:

Bruce Boischair and John Stearns hit three-run homers and Craig Swan pitched a six-hitter for the Mets, who dealt young Astro smoke-thrower Joaquin Andujar his fourth loss against eight wins. Swan struck out three and walked three in raising his record to 4-5 and pitching his first complete game of the season.

Phillies 4, Braves 2:

Steve Carlton raised his record to 9-3 and won his 100th game in a Philadelphia uniform when he pitched a six-hitter embellished by nine strikeouts and also singled in a run against the Braves. Steve Hargan lost in his first appearance for Atlanta.

Giants 8-8, Pirates 0-6:

Bob Knepper pitched a five-hitter and Derrel Thomas and Jack Clark hit homers in the first game for the Giants, who dealt Pittsburgh's Jim Rooker his fifth setback. The Giants completed the sweep when Darrell Evans' two-run homer in the seventh gave them the lead and Randy Moffitt protected it for the final 11-3 innings. Grant Jackson was the loser.

Padres 6, Cards 2:

Rookie Bob Owchinko, aided by Dan Spillner's ninth-inning relief, allowed four hits in 8 1-3 innings. The Padres sent him off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning with the key blow a two-run triple by Mike Champion. Bob Forsch suffered his fourth loss against eight victories for the Cardinals.

Hollypark winner Crystal Water may face Seattle Slew if time is right

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — According to trainer Roger Clapp, there's a chance he will send $350,000 Hollywood Gold Cup winner Crystal Water against Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew and Forego before the year is out.

"If it works out right, and I kind of think it will, I guess there's a good chance of that," Clapp said Sunday.

Connie Ring's California-bred Crystal Water may go in the Marlboro Cup and the Jockey Club Gold Cup in the fall in New York, Clapp said. The Jockey Club event could bring the trio of superstar horses together, he added.

Crystal Water carried the high weight of 129 pounds to a neck victory in the Hollywood Gold Cup Saturday, beating Cascapedia and Caucasus to the wire.

Clapp said he was uncertain about whether Crystal Water would run again between now and the Marlboro Cup, which is scheduled for Oct. 1 at Belmont Park.

It was reported in New York Saturday that Seattle Slew will risk his unbeaten record in the $200,000 Swaps Stakes for 3-year-olds at Hollywood Park July 3.

In Sunday's $56,050 Wilshire Handicap for fillies and mares on the turf, Now Pending took advantage of a light impost and a slow pace to race to a $46,20 upset.

Rudy Campas sent Now Pending to the front shortly after the start and the 4-year-old daughter of Petrone stayed there, holding off the closing challenge of Swintime by a half length.

Up To Juliet was third and favored Bastonera II finished fourth in the field of 10.

It was the third straight win for Now Pending, which raced the mile and one-eighth in the time of 1:48 4-5.

Yarborough wins seventh NASCAR race over Petty

CAMBRIDGE, JUNCTION, Mich. (UPI) — Long or short makes little difference to Cale Yarborough. He finishes first in both.

The Timmonsville, S.C., stock car driver took a 10-lap race Saturday and followed it up with a 200-lap victory Sunday at Michigan International Speedway.

The short run, in a match race against USAC driver Gordon Johncock, earned Yarborough $13,500, while the long run brought $16,275 more to the NASCAR star's purse.

The slight difference in prize money worked out to an additional $7.12 per

Lara hurls perfect game

Julie Lara hurls a perfect game for Vargas' Angels over the Peanut Gallery, 11-0 Saturday.

Pitching in Division I, Lara struck out 11 batters.

Julie not only turned in the gem but hit a home run, tripled and singled to lead the Angels. Michelle Mau chipped in a double and single for the Angels.

The last time anyone threw a perfect game was July 14, 1972.

That person was Jan Jeffers.

mile for each of the extra 190 trips Yarborough made around the two-mile "D" shaped MIS track in Sunday's race. They weren't easy trips, either.

"The track was terribly rough," Yarborough said after tagging Richard Petty with a 10.3-second defeat, giving him a 7-4 lead in victories this season and boosting his lead over the Randleman, N.C., runner in the driver standings.

"Cale was just that strong, at least from where I was sitting," said Petty, who leads the second leg 870-806, but trails Yarborough in the overall driver standings, 2,531-2,428. "Everything just went right for Cale. He just blew our doors off."

Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., was on the same lap as the two front runners but in third place, while a lap back in fourth was Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C.

"I don't see how the championship (USAC) cars will be able to run here (next month) the condition the track is in now," said Yarborough, whose Chevrolet showed a four-inch crack in the front body work near the left tire. "It's three times as rough as it was last year, just from the freeze, I guess."

Yarborough, who was black-flagged because of an oil leak before the race was 120 miles old, never relinquished the lead after grabbing it on the 264th mile, just prior to the fourth and final series of six yellow-flag laps.

RAISING HIS HANDS in victory is Frank Ebner of Bishop Amat High in La Puente. Ebner will be one of the runners in the National Invitational six-mile run during the Valley Distance Club's Distance Carnival, Saturday night at Huyck Stadium, beginning at 7. Ebner placed second in the CIF 3-A preliminaries and seventh in the state qualifying meet at two miles.

United Press International. In the American League the Boston Red Sox are proving to Billy Martin they have a much mightier weapon to offset their lack of pitching, while the Chicago White Sox "Junkyard Gang" keeps winning with "reclamation projects."

The Red Sox completed a three-game sweep Sunday with an 11-1 rout of the Yankees, highlighted by home runs from Denny Doyle, Bernie Carbo, Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Rice and George Scott.

And, oh yes, about that lack of Boston pitching, Ferguson Jenkins, the recipient of the five homers, stopped the Yankees on three hits in going the distance for his fifth win.

"I still don't think they are ever going to win the championship with a guy like (Bill) Lee in the regular rotation," said Martin.

The five home runs gave Boston a record 21 homers in the past five games, surpassing the previous mark set by the 1954 Giants and the 1963 Twins.

Meanwhile, the White Sox, who simply refuse to bow to their much-predicted demise, swept a 2-1, 5-1 doubleheader from the Oakland A's to take a .002 percentage lead over Minnesota in the AL West.

Kevin Bell hit a two-run single and Jorge Orta belted his seventh home run to key a four-run, fourth inning in the nightcap for Chicago, while in the opener, Wilbur Wood, who has been slowly making a comeback from knee injury, gained his first victory since May 9, 1976. Lamar Johnson belted two solo homers and Lerron LaGrow registered his 11th save to support Wood.

"I was real happy with the way the ball was moving for me today," said Wood. "If I can go out there the next couple of times and pitch this way, I would say I am back."

Indians 4, 4 Tigers 2, 0:

Ray Fosse's run-scoring double triggered a four-run fifth inning in the nightcap and Andre Thornton and Larvell Blanks slammed solo homers in the opener as the Indians presented new Manager Jeff Torborg with a double success in his debut. Jim Bibby tossed a four-hitter for the nightcap shutout while Wayne Garland, now 3-7, won the opener.

Angels 7, Brewers 0:

Frank Tanana fired a six-hit shutout for his 11th victory and was helped by a seven-run first inning. Tanana, now 11-3, struck out eight and walked three. Bobby Bonds, who was 6-for-10 in the three-game series, keyed the big first inning with a bases-loaded double.

Royals 8, Twins 7:

John Mayberry's double with none out in the ninth inning scored George Brett with the winning run, which dropped the Twins out of first place in the AL West. Minnesota had tied the score with two runs in the top of the ninth on an RBI single by Rod Carew and a sacrifice fly by Larry Hise.

Blue Jays 7, Orioles 1:

John Scott had three hits, including a tie-breaking single in the third inning, to help Toronto snap a six-game losing streak. Dave Lemanczyk went the distance for his fifth victory.

Mariners 2, Rangers 1:

Ruppert Jones' two-out, ninth-inning solo home run off losing pitcher Gaylord Perry lifted Seattle over the Rangers. Enrique Romo, 4-4, picked up the win in relief of 38-year-old Diego Segui, who went the first 5 1/3 innings for Seattle.

Courageous scores double win

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Courageous, vying for the right to defend the America's Cup she won in 1974, scored a double victory Sunday.

The sleek, white-hulled 12-meter yacht, skippered by Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner, beat newly built Enterprise by 45 seconds after 13.5 miles in the first of two races.

On her second try, she squeaked across the finish line half a second ahead in a shortened, 12.5-mile contest on Rhode Island Sound.

"We didn't know who won until it was over," said Turner, referring to the second race.

Today, Courageous takes on Independence, with sailmaker Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass., at the helm. The two boats also are expected to race twice.

The three yachts are competing for the right to represent the United States against a foreign challenge in the sailing classic which begins Sept. 13.

Enterprise skipper Lowell North, also a sailmaker, who led through part of the second race Sunday, said he had trouble covering his lead in the last leg of the race. He said he made the same mistake the day before in Saturday's opening trial races with Independence.

"I've learned my lesson twice now in the last two days," he said.

Laffite wins first GP race over Mario Andretti

ANDERSTORP, Sweden (UPI) — Jacques Laffite of France Sunday won the Swedish Grand Prix — his first Formula One victory — but it was heart-breaking day for Mario Andretti, who ran out of fuel two laps from victory and had to settle for sixth.

Laffite, driving a Ligier-Matra, completed the 72-lap, 179.76 mile course in 1:46:55.5 for an average speed of 100.87 miles per hour.

But while Laffite and the Ligier team celebrated, the Lotus stable was far from happy. Andretti, who led the race for 70 of the 72 laps in his black and gold JPS-Lotus Special, may have lost because of a misunderstanding with his pit crew.

He led by 15.4 seconds with two laps to go when he drove into the pits with an empty fuel tank. The fueling took too long — 28 seconds.

"They thought something was wrong with my back wheels and it took a few seconds before they understood what the problem was," Andretti said.

Laffite and four other drivers moved ahead of Andretti as he sat in the pits.

"You can imagine how I felt," the 37-year-old American veteran said. "Me and (teammate) Gunnar Nilsson controlled the field right up to that point. But what could I do? You can't go on without gas, and one championship point is still better than none."

And more trouble came during the refueling. Clay Regazzoni, the Swiss driver, said the Lotus team refueled using an open canister without a fire extinguisher on hand. The race jury turned down the protest but hit Andretti with a $230 fine for breaking refueling rules.

Jochen Mass of Germany, driving a McLaren, finished second and Carlos Reutemann of Argentina, in a Ferrari, was third.

"But really I had no hope of catching Andretti. I understood, however, that something was going on with the Lotus team. But I did not know what it was all about," Laffite said.

John Watson of Northern Ireland, driving a Brabham, also had bad luck. He beat Andretti, who had the pole position, at the start but was passed by the American in the second lap.

Watson held on until the 29th lap. Then Jody Scheckter of South Africa, in a Wolf, tried to overtake Watson but nipped his car in the back. The front end of the Wolf was demolished, forcing Scheckter out of the race.

Oswald: "Bridge players have lots of allergies. South's was that he was allergic to stopping one trick short of game. So he looked at his sixth spade and decided that he had to go to game after his partner invited it."

Jim: "Maybe that sixth trump was sufficient reason. In any event when South looked at dummy, he saw that there was a reasonable play for game."

Oswald: "His first concern was with the trump suit. He wanted to lose just one trump trick and there was a chance he could work it out. He led a trump to dummy's queen. It held. He led back a trump. East played the jack and South ducked. This play is called the compulsory finesse. He couldn't gain by covering. He did gain by ducking because West had to play the ace."

Jim: "After this nice result South was home. Hearts were continued. South ruffed the third heart, drew the last trump and went after diamonds. The suit failed to break, but South still had his contract."

A Winnipeg reader wants to know what it means to finesse against your partner.

The finesse against partner is a third-hand play. It is a deliberate play of a low card. It is seldom correct.

OPINIONS

The Record's aim is to present facts in its news columns and opinions in its editorial columns.

The value of trees

If there is one thing guaranteed to produce comment at any gathering in Lompoc, it has to be the relative value of the trees and landscaping the city is installing throughout our community.

South G, H and I Streets were developed a year ago, and quite nicely we think. North H Street is now on the drawing boards for much the same treatment; the entrances to the city, both north and southeast, are scheduled for improvement; and there is a possibility East and West Ocean may come up fairly shortly as well. All in all, we think a lot has been undertaken and accomplished in a two or three-year time frame, and hope it continues far into the future.

The cloud on the horizon is the resistance of a sizeable number of Lompoc citizens to what the city is doing with its tree and landscape planting. Maintenance seems to be a concern most often expressed, and to an extent its a valid one. Additional equipment, man hours, money are going to be needed to care for all this shrubbery, and is it worth it?, they ask.

There is but one answer to that question, we believe, and it has to be "Yes."

For three years prior to South G, H, and I Streets being developed to their present status, a group of people toured to, looked at and analyzed other cities with ample landscaping and tree lined streets in their downtown area. All were thriving and growing steadily. One such was San Luis Obispo. It was decided on the basis of other cities' experiences that in terms of landscaping, more was better and that philosophy was used as the foundation for the drive to beautify Lompoc. We are now seeing the fruits of that labor as City Council recently supported the North H Street median and landscaping.

The experience of a developer in Kalamazoo, Michigan might also lend some credence to the argument that more is better.

Apparently, according to the story, one Dr. Lewis Batts, Jr. professor of ecology at the Kalamazoo College and director of the Nature Center here, decided to see what being a developer was all about ... really. What Batts ultimately developed was a community called Parkview Hills, after five years the most sought after living system in the city of Kalamazoo, and a model for other cities throughout the United States. His premise was a simple one: this country doesn't need less building. What it needs is better building.

By building an environmentally sound residential community, Batts proved it is also a much better and more desirable place in which to live. By providing Parkview Hills with those features polls show most people look for, Batts has created a sell out with a waiting list for whatever he does next. What special features has Batts included? He provided no more than trees, wooded areas, green grass, open space, nearby water and convenient shopping.

We recognize Lompoc is an existing community and a far different set of considerations are in play here than in a from-scratch development like Parkview Hills. However, we have to believe Batts' premise is on the money and as applicable in a 102-year-old town like Lompoc as it is in a five-year-old town like Parkview Hills. Give us trees, and landscaping, and open spaces and we'll give you a community of very satisfied citizens ... and shoppers.

"Excuse me, but has anyone seen a golf ball bounce by here?"

Washington Calling by Marquis Childs

Ambassador Young and racism

WASHINGTON — In the first four months of the Carter administration Andrew Young has made himself the principal target in the political shooting gallery. Sounding off at every opportunity, he shows no sign of letting up short of a cease and desist order from his close friend, the president.

The latest example in his interview with Playboy in which he touches all bases bound to offend practically everyone except his own loyal black constituency. In all the criticism leveled at him there has been, it seems to me, a failure to understand what he means when he applies the word racist to all and sundry with the exception of his patron, Carter.

Take as a pertinent example his remarks about the possibility of Cuban troops in Addis Ababa, the capital of revolution-torn Ethiopia. As he came out of the foreign office — I saw this in London — after a meeting with David Owen, the British foreign secretary, he was asked about the Cubans in Addis.

His first response made it sound almost as though he was spoofing the State Department. The official line was that this was a matter of grave concern and, he went on, grinning, I suppose I should stick to that. But then he said he thought it might be a good thing because the Cubans might be able to put some restraints on the random killings of the dictator, Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile-Mariam, who has put all human life in jeopardy.

In the Playboy interview, Carter said much the same thing about the order-keeping role of the Cubans in Angola.

Behind this, I believe, is his distress at the spectacle of blacks killing blacks. To take that for granted as part of the upheaval in Africa is, in Young's lexicon, to be a racist.

This speaks well for Young's deep convictions, but it is naive to say the least. Peoples newly liberated from colonialism could hardly be expected to assume the obligations of orderly self-government. Particularly, as Young notes in the interview, when in Angola and Mozambique the Portuguese took everything out of their former colonies that was not nailed down.

Young zeroes in on Idi Amin, making a distinction between murder and genocide and wishing that Amin would disappear off the face of the earth. But is Amin very much different from the Ethiopian dictator? Those familiar with the situation in Addis Ababa say that at least Mengistu is not mad. He is trying to consolidate a revolution by the bloodiest means. The 50 Cuban advisers — with many more expected — now are helping achieve that end and, while they may be more efficient, there is no sign they are applying restraints.

The killings, in the view of this observer, are likely to continue for a long time to come. It is beyond reason to expect that people who have lived in repression, colonialism, the atrocities of the slave trade, should suddenly walk out of that dark past and take on the responsibilities of self-government.

A recent attempted coup in Angola, with the rebels seizing the radio station and other critical points, was put down with a report of "many killed." And there are an estimated 20,000 Cubans in Angola.

It is, of course, absurd to call Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon racists. Young modified this in an appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when he said that they were "insensitive" to cultural differences which would make it extremely difficult to deal with peoples of color.

The accusations Young throws about so freely may please the administration's black constituency, but they surely do little to help close the gap between the races either at home or abroad.

Black Africans have heard for so long the kind of rhetoric coming from Young. And in the developing world they could hardly escape getting the message of the North-South conference in Paris which for developing countries — most of Africa — was failure to come up with any meaningful program.

Moreover, some blacks have a kind of reverse racism: an antagonism toward whites that goes to the core of their resentment of deep-seated grievances and sense of inequality. It seems unlikely that the constant reiteration of racism directed at whites everywhere will abate this feeling. The kind of thinking out loud that Young has been doing can hardly be called diplomacy.

A little silence from the ambassador to the United Nations is in order. It would be welcomed by all concerned with the possible exception of reporters and commentators for whom he has provided endless copy and comment.

Right answer

Boy, the Egyptians had the right idea. When they went they took it all with them, right to the tomb.

A few have tried to revive the custom. There was a woman in New Jersey who was buried with her telephone. (Talk about cruel! Her husband included a 75-foot extension cord!) There was a golfer in Florida who requested he be buried with his clubs on the first green. His will said he always wanted a permanent "hole in one." A couple of months ago in California, a woman requested she be buried in her lace nightgown at the wheel of her Ferrari "with the seat slanted comfortably."

It got me to thinking, why should I leave my untold wealth to a second wife? Let her amass her own fortune like I did. That is why I am insisting that the following items go with me when I go.

My book of sitters' telephone numbers: This is a first edition that I wear at all times taped to my bra. I have kids in there who will work for 50 cents an hour and all the food that doesn't attack them first. Also, a sweet, little elderly woman who cleans the oven when I'm gone and one woman who believes, "There is no such thing as a rotten kid. He just needs a laxative."

A letter from the book club telling me of my cancellation. You can't buy letters like this and it took me four years of correspondence, plus the purchase of a Xerox machine to get it. Besides, I don't want to take any chances. If they keep sending me books, I've got proof.

The Alps

Within the vicinity of Berne are many interesting sights but we had time for only a few.

We drove to the little town of Gruyere, renowned for its cheese, and prowled through the old walled city and castle. The nearby town of Avenches was once the Roman city of Aventicum and parts of the coliseum and city walls can still be seen.

As a little girl I can remember my grandfather talking about Interlaken and the Jungfrau so I had planned that we would take the funicular ride to this famous Alp. The weather, however, had not been clear and we were a bit behind schedule so we settled for a morning aerial cable car ride to the top of the Schilthorn Alp instead. What a lucky decision that was.

The day turned out to be clear and the view from the revolving cafe at the top was spectacular. You feel as if you are at the top of the world, (9,700 feet) surrounded by towering, precipitous, snowclad Alps — not a sound could be heard except the few people who were there. The ride up took a little over half an hour on the largest aerial cable in the world. How they ever could have built that large structure, turntop and all, way up that Alp in the sky is beyond me.

While in Berne we were guests in the home of the Swiss counterpart of the director of the former Atomic Energy Commission in our country. Sometime during the evening he asked where we were going next. We said we were heading toward Lake Maggiore by way of Funka Pass and St. Gotthard tunnel. Can't do it — they are closed because of late snows. So we had to re-route our travels a bit and ride through an Alp instead of up and over it.

We drove the car on to a covered flat-car and away we went, car, passengers and all. It wasn't one long tunnel but a series of them, flashes of beautiful mountain, valleys and villages in-between. This ride took almost two hours, passing in and out of Switzerland and Italy several times, ending up on the shores of Lake Maggiore for the night at Mergossa.

We were now in the Italian part of Switzerland, called the Ticino. Here people speak Italian and we had our first pasta; ravioli that was covered with grated Parmesan cheese, not highly seasoned tomato sauce. It was delicious. We were also in the land of lakes — Maggiore, Lugano and Como. I could have said beautiful lakes but we found pollution at Maggiore and the atmosphere was so hazy or smoggy we could hardly see the other sides of the lakes. I hope this is not a permanent condition.

The freeway took us straight south to Milan where our hotel was just across the street from La Scala, the world famous opera house. In Venice, Jim and I stayed in a gem of a small hotel where I had been previously and it too was next door to the opera house. We could occasionally hear the tenor or the soprano practicing arpeggios but that is as close as we could get to hearing an opera anywhere on the trip. This is the time of the year for music festivals in Europe and we found it impossible to get tickets.

My advice to travelers is this: have your travel agent get them for you but start on it early. Your agent can get tickets for plays or any kind of performance and that saves you blood, sweat and tears at the other end.

Guam narcotics smuggling

WASHINGTON — The unlikely island of Guam has become the crossroads of the subterranean drug traffic. Millions worth of heroin, opium and marijuana are routed through Guam to underworld drug dealers in the United States.

The international narcotics racketeers keep shifting the hub of their smuggling network from one airport to another. They have moved the operation like a floating crap game from Miami to Asuncion to Panama City to Hong Kong. Now they have settled, at least temporarily, on the picturesque little volcanic island of Guam in the mid-Pacific.

Secret intelligence reports describe how narcotics are smuggled through the Guam gateway. Heroin has been secreted in the household effects of U.S. personnel returning home from overseas. It has been packed between the double walls of vases which, one report explains, "have to be broken to determine the contents."

Couriers have carried up to a pound of heroin strapped to their waists. Young women have been caught "with heroin taped to their legs or in body cavities."

The ground crews of a major airline, according to one intelligence report, are working with the smugglers. "Unwitting flying personnel" from the two Air Force bases on Guam "may also be used," the report suggests.

The intelligence reports identify one smuggling ring by the nickname "Mog Fog." This underground organization channels an incredible $12 million worth of heroin through Guam each month, plus a high-potency, opium-coated marijuana concoction known in the drug culture as "Thai sticks." The authorities have no accurate estimate how many of these deadly delicacies are distributed through Guam.

"Mog Fog," according to a secret report, "is based in Guam, with branches in Bangkok, Hong Kong, Manila, Honolulu, California and New York, with connections in Missouri, Nevada, Texas, Illinois and Connecticut."

The heroin trade generates "tens of billions" of dollars each year. The profits are so enormous yet elusive that the authorities don't have a solid estimate of the amount. But some idea of the high stakes can be gained from the profit margins. A kilo of pure heroin, costing $15,000 at the source, may eventually be worth $1.5 million in the streets.

This dirty money is laundered primarily through foreign banks. The drug smugglers used to hide their illegal profits in Swiss and Mexican banks. But both countries have become more cooperative with the U.S. authorities. So today, the racketeers stash most of their heroin returns in Caribbean banks.

The banks of the Bahamas, Cayman Islands, Haiti, Jamaica, Netherlands Antilles Islands and Panama are doing a booming business in dirty money. Most of the banks are branches of distinguished U.S. banks. These overseas branches are virtually free of the reporting requirements, which make it difficult for the home offices to handle mob money.

An astonishing 75 U.S. banks have offices, for example, in the Bahamas. Thus the Bahamas have more American banks than do the states of Alaska, Arizona, Delaware and Idaho combined. The Cayman Islands, to name another unlikely banking center, has 51 American banks.

Intelligence sources also suspect that major drug dealers keep anonymous accounts in certain banks in Bangkok, Hong Kong and tiny Liechtenstein. Middle Eastern dealers, who smuggle Afganistan heroin into Europe with a smaller flow into America, reportedly do their banking in Iran.

At the end of the economic chain are the street people — teen-agers who earn $50 a day acting as lookouts for the pushers in Harlem; spikers who for $5 will help an addict find a vein that hasn't collapsed from repeated puncturing; couriers, bagmen and gunsels who handle the dope; and finally, the street dealers who peddle the stuff to the addicts.

Footnote: The Customs Service, given its manpower shortage, is remarkably effective at intercepting smuggled narcotics. But tracking the dirty money is one of the most difficult investigative chores in law enforcement. The Internal Revenue Service set up a special unit in 1970 to concentrate on the drug racket. But for a mix of reasons, ranging from tightened laws to bureaucratic politics, the unit has been disbanded. The Drug Enforcement Agency, meanwhile, has acquired a full-time "dirty-money" expert.

WHO'S NEWS — A woman who quit World Airways in a huff has now charged its chairman with trying to force his sexual attentions on her. In one of the most colorful suits filed in federal court here in a long time, Bonnie A. Clark charged that World Chairman Edward Daley began with "a little pat on her derriere, without plaintiff's consent" and grew progressively insistent. She rebuffed him, left her job and is now suing for $3 million. Through his lawyer, Daley declined comment.

— Rep. Charles Whalen, R-Ohio, has challenged Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass., for trying to conceal who voted for the congressional pay raise. Whalen has written a "Dear Colleague" letter, charging this is a "conflict-of-interest situation." He thinks congressmen should go before the electorate after they vote a pay raise but before they begin to draw it.
